UNPACKED

By now Moses has gone back to Egypt with his brother as God told him to do. God gave Moses all that he needed to free the Israelites as we heard last week.

The Israelites in our story today have been the slaves of the Egyptians for about 400 years and although they know all about God from the people who lived before them. They may not think of Him as a powerful God who is able to free them from their Egyptian rulers.

By sending Moses, God was doing two things – proving to the Israelites how powerful He is and proving to the Egyptians that He is the only God. God does this by sending 10 plagues through Moses to show both the Israelites and the Egyptians His power.

It must have been really difficult for both Moses and the Israelites to have faith in God when He was sending the plagues, because they would have experienced the plagues just like the Egyptians did. But God was able to prove to them that by having faith in Him they would be saved no matter how long it took.

We must also have faith in God's power and strength. It might sometimes feel like we are the Israelites in this story at the moment. But God has not abandoned us and He is working to free us from this situation. So be strong and have faith in God and we will get through this because He will never leave us because He loves us unconditionally.

God has carried us all at some point during our lives and will probably do so many more times.

Read the poem above and spend some time thanking God for all the times he has carried you in the past and for all those times he will carry you in the future.

Poem adapted from original poem called footprints in the sand.
